Mr. McClure's reply was published in the Philadelphia Daily News of October 10, 1860. He wrote that he would answer these questions in writing as soon as possible. The replies were published in the Philadelphia Daily News on October 11, 1860.

The political campaigns of 1860 were marked by intense debate over the issue of slavery. The Democratic party was divided on the issue, with some members supporting the Confederacy and others supporting the Union. The Republican party, led by Abraham Lincoln, emerged as the dominant force in the North and eventually won the presidency. The election of 1860 was a pivotal moment in American history, with the outcome having significant implications for the future of the country.
ANDREW G. CURTIN, of CUYAHOGA COUNTY.

A wise and important responsibility rests upon every man in the land who aspires to any honor in the public service. No higher ambition is atoning, no higher calling is possible than that of receiving the confidence of our fellow-citizens to serve them. And yet, too often, we find aspirants for public office who, instead of seeking that office as a noble calling, present it as a means of personal aggrandisement. It is to be hoped that the majority of our people will ever be true to the principle that it is not the office that makes the man, but the man that makes the office.

The power of the people is the foundation of the government of the United States. It is vested in the people, and it must be exercised by the people. The government of the United States, therefore, is fundamentally a government of the people by the people for the people. The people are the sole source of all sovereignty; they delegate it to their representatives, and they can recall it at any time. The government is therefore a government of the people, by the people, and for the people. It is their government, and they are the only ones who have the right to exercise it.

A vote for a man is a vote for his policies, his character, his integrity, his ability, his judgment, his fitness for the position he would hold. It is a vote for what he would do, not what he has done. It is a vote for the future, not for the past. It is a vote for the government, not for the individual. It is a vote for the people, not for the leaders. It is a vote for the public welfare, not for the public interest. It is a vote for the common good, not for the individual good.

A vote for a man is a vote for a principle, a vote for an idea, a vote for a vision, a vote for a future. It is a vote for what we want to see, not what we want to have. It is a vote for what we want to do, not what we want to get. It is a vote for what we want to achieve, not what we want to acquire. It is a vote for what we want to create, not what we want to consume. It is a vote for what we want to build, not what we want to destroy.

A vote for a man is a vote for a destiny, a vote for a path, a vote for a direction, a vote for a course. It is a vote for where we want to go, not where we have been. It is a vote for where we want to be, not where we are. It is a vote for where we want to live, not where we live. It is a vote for where we want to work, not where we work. It is a vote for where we want to play, not where we play.

A vote for a man is a vote for what we believe, not what we want. It is a vote for what we think, not what we feel. It is a vote for what we know, not what we hope. It is a vote for what we want to do, not what we want to say. It is a vote for what we want to be, not what we want to have.
