FRANKLIN COUNTY.

Wednesday, December 1, 1864.

FRANKLIN COUNTY.

FRANKLIN COUNTY.

The success of the rebellion seems to have come to an end. The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.

The Union forces have occupied Charleston and Mobile, and are now in possession of all important points of the South. The Federal Government, through its representative in the South, has announced that peace has been declared by the Southern Government, and that all its armed forces are to be abandoned to the Union authorities. The Southern Government has also expressed its willingness to negotiate a peace of honor and justice, and to submit to the terms of the Union Government.