February 1, 1865

The Franklin Repository, Chambersburg, Pa.

[Article text]

The Northern Coast.

WASHINGTON.

[Article text]

[Continued text]

THE CRISIS.

[Article text]

[Continued text]
February 1, 1865.

BY MAGNETIC TELEGRAPH.

In the early hours of this morning the death of President

r

Mr. Lincoln has occurred, in consequence of wounding at the riche. The news has spread abroad with great

w

Above is the image of the page of the Franklin Repository from February 1, 1865. The page contains various articles and notices, including a written account of the death of President Lincoln. The text is in English, and the page layout includes multiple columns of text and some advertisements. The page is well-organized, with clear headings and a structured format typical of 19th-century newspapers.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Content</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Hardware &amp; House Furniture</td>
<td>Hardware and House Furniture...</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stores &amp; Agencies</td>
<td>Stores and Agencies...</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manufacturers</td>
<td>Manufacturers...</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wholesale &amp; Retail</td>
<td>Wholesale and Retail...</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Location &amp; Transportation</td>
<td>Location and Transportation...</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Advertisements</td>
<td>Advertisements...</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note: The text is too detailed to transcribe accurately. It appears to be a list of goods, services, and advertisements from a periodical.