

We clip the following from the Spectator. We know good-looking and accomplished Robert Napper, and our neighbor has well described him. How to commemorate the abused philanthropy of the "Religious Telegraph"?

BOB SPRIG A YAN.—An unknown correspondent enclosed the following risk paragraph to a gentleman of this place, without comment. It is an extract from the "Religious Telegraph," an abolition paper published at Dayton, Ohio:

Robert Napper, who lives in Columbus, O., called on our office on Monday last, and from him we obtained the following facts: He was, a few years since, a slave in Augusta county, Va. His master being coming to the city, he was sold, and he was carried away to the South, he bought a woman, in whom he had confidence, to buy him. The man refused, at first, saying that he never would sell a slave. Napper proposed that he should buy him, and then give him a chance to work out his freedom. To this the wealthy non-slaveholder consented, and in four years and three months, Mr. Napper paid in his hands, as the result of his own toil, $1000 in specie. Free papers were then given him.

But now he was involved in new difficulties. His wife and five children were the property of a Presbyterian lady; and the law required that he should leave the State within a year! What could he do? As a last and only hope he came to Ohio, and by hard work and the aid of friends he has been able to purchase his wife and youngest child. They are now with him at Columbus. The Presbyterian lady offers him another one of his children, a little boy for $600; but will on no account, sell the oldest three! Mr. Napper has little son. Mr. Napper is a noble looking man.

It will be seen from the above that Bob has lost most of what he tells the truth in regard to the refusal of the mistress of his children to sell them to him; but if she does, we believe that slaveholders in this part of the country generally claim the right to dispose of their property or not, just as they see fit. To say the least of it, the noble looking Mr. Napper has suppressed the facts connected with his departure from this place. He was detected in stealing corn from a gentleman of the neighborhood, convicted of the offense before the Mayor of Staunton, whipped at the public whipping post, and ordered to leave the State. Perhaps the "Religious Telegraph" will put its readers in possession of these additional facts in the history of Mr. Napper.

We are always willing to meet, and if possible, refute, an attack made in a becoming manner upon any position which may have been assumed by us; but a batch of imperfections like the following, which are prominent characteristics of the style of the editor of the "Virginia Citizen," whenever he speaks of his contemporaries who differ with him in politics, and which are alike unbecoming a journalist and gentleman, — we pass by with no other than this brief notice:

THE STAUNTON VINDICATOR AND THE AFRICAN SLAVE TRADE.—The Staunton Vindicator is an amusing sheet. Its editorials are really rich, rare and racy. It has had two or three articles on the African slave trade that are the most amusing things ever conceived by mortal man. We would defy all the Philadelphia lawyers in christendom to "make hair or hide" out of them. Why, gentlemen, if you are in favor of illegalizing that horrid traffic, the African slave trade, why in the name of common sense don't you say so once, and be done with it; and if you oppose it why not say so? Why all that stuff about slavery as an institution, slavery as a right, slavery as the natural and normal condition of all human society, and all that trimmings of stuff you have about slavery, and liberty, and education, all of which exhibit the merest jumble of ideas. Come, now, right out with what you wish to say, and be done with it. People love directness and plain talk.

Gen. Sam. Houston, has again been elected by the people of Texas Governor, ever Eussell, the regular Democratic nominee. It means that the only way to arrive at political eminence in these degenerated days, is by a consistent and determined course of fraud, such as has been practiced by the gentleman in question. Starting with the small capital of the "Hero of San Jacinto," he has speculated upon it and dupped his constituents until his name has become a by-word of contempt among politicians. By turning somersets political, which would stonish the eye of the most skillful gymnast, he always manages to a light on the strong side. For instance in 1855, he rode into office on the tide of Know-Nothingism, but after the signal rebuke, which this State gave that injurious order, it lost cast in Texas, and Houston finding himself in the Lurch found it convenient and politic to return to the faith of his fathers, and for his treachery he has been rewarded with the highest office in the State.

Messrs. Wise and Old. On Saturday morning last three gentlemen met in the Sold about three miles from Washington City, for the purpose of settling an affair of honor. After two shots, without injury to either, their accusers withdrew and the affair was amicably adjusted. The meeting grew out of some comments of the Equizer on an editorial of the Examiner on Gov. Wise's Donnelly letter. The Equizer applied the term "antiruths" to some remarks of the Examiner. Cards of explanation appeared in the Equizer and Examiner, but their length compelled us to omit them.

Van Amburg's Circus. We would recommend to the pleasure seeking people, this excellent Circus, not only on account of the superiority of its exhibitions, which is great, but also, because of the politeness and gentlemanly behavior of the managers and all the actors. The free tickets which they gave us, to the satisfaction of the Deaf and Dumb and Blind Institution, indicates a spirit of kindness and generosity, commendable in the highest degree.

The Democracy of Fayette county is a large and respectable meeting held at the Court-house, declared themselves in favor of Hon. Henry A. Wise, as their first choice for the Presidency.

Blondin Outside. The wonderful feat of Blondin walking across Niagara on a tight rope, then trundling a wheelbarrow over on the same rope, then taking a man over and capping the climax, by dancing over the scolding abyss, have all been read and admired, by the world at large and mankind generally, and we fondly hoped that Mons. B. had borne off the palm of foot hardness and would find no competitor to dispute it. It seems however, that he was doomed to disappointment, and that from one of his own countrymen, M. Delave, the hero in question, first offered to trip Mons. B. on a Heenan and Morrissey, on his own rope. This was refused, our little Frenchman fearing to lose his laurels and life, as one fell swoop. Determined not to be outdone, Mons. B. said that he would cross the Genesee river and falls, and actually accomplished the feat. — His rope was nine hundred feet long and only one inch and three-fourths in diameter.

The walk is a more dangerous one, even than Blondin's, because it lies directly over the surging chasm and the spray from the water-fall keeps the rope constantly wet. — The feat was successfully accomplished, however, and thus Mons. Blondin has made himself notorious, only to have the mortification of seeing himself outstripped in his own profession.

General Jackson's Snuff Box. In the City Hall, at Nashville, on the 18th of August, a large number of citizens were assembled to witness the presentation of the splendid gold snuff-box left by Gen. Jackson, to his will, to be inherited by that citizen of New York City, who should most distinguish himself by his gallantry in defence of his country in the first war in which the country might be engaged. Mayor McGavock was called to the Chair, and H. K. Walker and J. O. Griffith acted as Secretaries. The relic had been formally awarded to Gen. Ward B. Barnst, the Colonel of the First Regiment of New York Volunteers in Mexico—but Gen. B. not being able to be present, on account of official business in Kansas, the presentation was made to General Gideon J. Pillow, as his representative, by Dr. John M. Lawrence, acting as the representative of Col. Andrew Jackson, his father-in-law, who was, also, necessarily absent. The remarks made upon the occasion, and the written address of Gen. Barnst, which was read, were marked by eloquence and good taste, and the scene must have been deeply interesting.

Arrest on the Charge of Theft. On Tuesday last, officer Armstrong, by the instance of Mr. Wm. J. Skumate, and at his complaint, arrested David and John Lamb, on the charge of having stolen or traded for wheat, which he (Skumate) had missed from his barn about the last of July. On Wednesday, the two brothers were arraigned before Justice Poole. The facts elicited by the testimony, were rather pointed, and the Court sent them on for further trial. They were, however, admitted to bail in the sum of $150 apiece, and upon giving security were released.

We call attention to the advertisement of Dr. Schullz. The cure which the Dr. has made in Staunton, would be sufficient to procure him patronage, without the high recommendations with which he comes among us.

Required. The Rev. Mr. Davis, for some years past the pastor of the Lutheran Church in this place, has resigned his post, and will preach his valedictory sermon on Sunday next.

Religious Services. The Rev. Theo. Sewall, of the Baltimore Conference, will preach in the Presbyterian Church, in this place, this (Friday evening) at early candle light.

Another Indian War—Removed Battle.—The St. Louis Democrat has rumors to the effect that 5,000 Kaw, Osage, and Comanche Indian warriors had assembled near Emporia, on the borders of Kansas, and seriously threaten the settlements, and also that an engagement had taken place between the Indians and whites, near the town of Dorado, in which one hundred of the former and five of the latter were killed. The town of Chelsea, it was likewise rumored, was surrounded by Indians.

The accounts received by the Asia represent the alarm manifested by England and Prussia, in regard to the hostile projects attributed to Louis Napoleon, as being one of the declines. Notwithstanding the public mind so long as the political affairs of Italy remain unsettled, the funds exhibit a buoyancy which shows that the commercial world places great faith in the Emperor's sincerity than the tone of the newspapers would lead us to believe.

Our town and county have been recently visited by copious showers of rain, which have served to revive the face of nature and give hope of a little better crop of corn. It is, however, almost too late to hope for this. We fear that the crop in this county will be far below an average one, but with an abundant wheat crop to supply the deficiency, it is to be hoped that the "staff of life" will not be wanting.

Sudden Death of the Clerk.—On Friday last Mr. John F. Dunn, of Louisiana, while travelling on the cars by the Central Railroad, suddenly fell dead near Gordonsville. The deceased was a middle-aged gentleman, and was traveling alone. His remains were conveyed to Richmond and were interred with the usual ceremony by the odd Fellows, of which order he was ascertained to be a member, by a card found on his person.

We would call special attention to the notice of Mr. Kerr, which appears in our paper to-day, concerning his Summer-dean Whiskey. It is well known to be the most popular drink now imbibed, by the knowing ones, and should it meet with its merited success, its maker will be an object of congratulation, to all his friends.

The Bank of Weston, (Lewis co.) having issued a larger number of notes than it was able to redeem, the Governor has issued his proclamation, notifying State officers not to take them for any claims due the State. Those who have these notes need not be alarmed as the Bank is said to be perfectly solvent.

Our town is rendered quite lively now by the return of the Spring's travel, which is as large, if not larger, than the corresponding season of last year. All of the hotels, of which Staunton can boast of three of the best of any inland town in the State, are doing a fair business.

High Price. On Monday last a negro boy aged 14, the property of Mr. Zachariah Johnson, was sold at auction for the sum of $1500. Sold by Messrs. Turk & Cushing. The Turk, Eq., was the purchaser.

The Lexington Cadets.—The corps of Cadets at the Virginia Military Institute, under the command of Col. F. H. Smith, has accepted an invitation to visit Norfolk during the next Fair of the Seaboard Agricultural Society, commencing on the 7th November.

Religious Services. The Rev. Theo. Sewall, of the Baltimore Conference, will preach in the Presbyterian Church, in this place, this (Friday evening) at early candle light.

Is no city in the United States so publicly to a brief notice of a procession of the Sons of Temperance and a picnic of the same, and successfully carried out by the Spring Division on Tuesday next. Early have I ever been morally reformed, to take the pen in hand to describe an occasion of the kind, than the above mentioned, and think that there was not occasion to be informed and have some occupation of the pleasure and enjoyment realized by the assembly of that day. The procession formed at their Hall, headed by some of Mr's fair daughters, who were enlisted to wield their mighty influence in the cause, and thence proceeded to a grove near by where they and the crowd at large were entertained for a short time in a very able and eloquent address, by the Rev. Mr. Ounibus, who described the Star of Temperance as it rose above a gloomy horizon, and traced it in its course, rising higher and higher, and shining with greater and greater brilliancy and splendor. He portrayed in bright and vivid colors, the good and beneficial effects of the Temperance Order, remarking how many had been snatched from the brink of a drunkard's grave, and turned from the error of their way to be greeted by their friends, and callous their family circles with a parental smile, instead of rendering them miserable by the caustic and harsh rebuffs of the inebriate. On the other hand he painted, with the skill of the artistic painter, the horrible and baneful influence of intemperance, which, when uncheckered and unbridled, like a tempest, sweeps every thing before it in its mad career, and brings its victim to a sad and untimely end. The company was then invited to the table where rich and dainty collation was prepared, and which all were plentifully helped and filled, leaving many baskets full of fragments to be taken up. After the picnic was over the society convention order met in which several prominent members of the different Divisions represented, made some very appropriate remarks about the importance of their cause and their success in impeding the progress, and raising great barriers against the inroads of Old King Alcohol. The assembly then dispersed, and everything went off in the finest style. The weather was cool and pleasant, scarcely a cloud obscuring the azure canopy of Heaven. It speaks well for the young and prosperous Mint Spring Division, which bids fair to be a great herald in proclaiming the good news of Temperance, and especially so since it is favored by the bewitching smiles of its supping ladies who have rallied to their support with untiring zeal. In conclusion much praise is due to the ladies of Mint Spring and vicinity for the enterprise and industry exhibited in preparing such a choice repast, and should be long remembered by all present. A SPECTATOR.

Thoughts on a Beautiful Opal. Thou peerless thing, O beauty! Thou something "The Sun's"; Through the diamond and the ruby, Glean high on royal crowns, And emeralds and sapphires, With pearls and jasper sets, Flash their Promethean fires On gorgeous minarets.

Though flecks of heaven's gliding, Though sparks from glory's rod, (Struck off, perhaps, in building That city made by God.) Or Angel's tears they may be, Or dew drops turned to stone! Yet even Beauty'll weary At a play that's never done.

But this is beauty's grog, Adown whose fairy steep, We scarcely dare look at her, Lest we startle her from sleep— As though the little Peri, Having run the world abroad, Here, plume-worn and weary, Were quivering into rest.

O! is it magic rainbow, Or sunset newly caught, Dropped down to let us know How "the beautiful" is wrought? As though it would, unasked, Immortality vest. By folding visions vast Into such a tiny breast!

Ab, here's thy eth'ral, oh Opal! The sweet, suggestive thought, Of that eternal fœal Where the Soul of Beauty's caught! And forced so far to sever, Shall there be kindly playing, And gathered in forever!

Then another thought comes here, As thus we gaze at thee: Thou seem'st at a miniature Of what woman ought to be— A brightness—yet not bright, As coloring earthly gaze, But a quiet, inner light, Which shines, but does not blaze!

The bright and sweet, thus blended, No one conspicuous charm, As "precious stone," intended As mate's talisman from harm. 'Tis like to the jeweled Elyph, Up to the ancient prime— A thing most pure and sacred To be worn upon his breast! Clarke Co., Va. TARBLET STARR.

THE FERRYMAN AMONG THE MORMONS.—It was stated a few days ago that an organized band of forgers, whose purpose was to forge United States quarters notes, had been detected at New York and St. Louis, had been detected at New York and St. Louis City among the Mormons at Great Salt Lake City and on search being made, the place for striking checks, was found in the possession of one Brewer, who had some several checks with the quarters mark on them. The intention, it is said, was to send Brewer over to California to put them into circulation. If the scheme had not been in operation in the end, the public would probably have been swindled out of a million of dollars. A dispatch from St. Louis, Aug. 10 says:

One of the counterfeit checks on the subscription of St. Louis was received yesterday. Its imitation of the genuine is admirably executed, and well calculated to deceive. The tools, materials, &c. seized by the United States marshal, were found in the Charles Tilling office of Brigham Young. The parties arrested are said to be Mormons of high standing, and it is understood that the profits of the transaction which were to accrue were intended for the benefit of the church.

MAGNIFICENT PEARLS TO QUEEN VICTORIA.—The London Chronicle says: "We can state on the authority of a private letter from India, that the Maharajah of Cochin is forwarding, as a present to her Majesty, a most costly pearl tent, which is valued at a handsome sum of gold. The value of this regal offering is said to exceed £150,000."

Commissioner's Sale. THE undersigned as Commissioner of the Circuit Court of Augusta county, appointed by a decree rendered in the case of J. M. BAYLOR vs. J. M. BAYLOR, with process on the premises, on the 24th day of August, 1856, to sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, the land of J. M.
