STAUNTON SPECTATOR AND GENERAL ADVERTISER.

STAUNTON, VA.  TUESDAY, APRIL 18, 1860.

The tariffs of Congress, as the result of the Washington Convention, which was held during the last week of April, 1860. The Convention was called by the President of the United States, and had for its object the consideration of the tariff laws of the United States, and the adoption of such amendments to them as would be consistent with the interests of the country. The Convention consisted of members from the different states, and was presided over by the President of the United States. The Convention met in the Capitol, and was addressed by the President, who gave an account of the state of the country, and stated the objects which had brought the Convention together. The Convention then proceeded to consider the tariff laws of the United States, and to make such amendments to them as would be consistent with the interests of the country. The Convention was a very important one, and its proceedings were watched with great interest by the people of the United States. The Convention adjourned on the 18th of April, 1860, without having reached any definite conclusions. The tariff laws of the United States are now under consideration in the House of Representatives, and it is expected that the Convention will be called together again to consider the tariff laws of the United States, and to make such amendments to them as will be consistent with the interests of the country.

Married,

I. M. E. C.

Mrs. Mary Brown, of Staunton, Va., was married to W. H. C. Brown, of the same place, on the 17th of April, 1860.

The marriage took place at the residence of the bride, and was attended by many friends of the couple. The ceremony was performed by Judge Brown, and the bride was given away by her father. The bride and groom were received with great enthusiasm by their friends, and the wedding was a happy and prosperous one.

The marriage of Mrs. Mary Brown and W. H. C. Brown has caused much excitement among the people of Staunton, and has been the subject of much discussion. The couple have been living together for a number of years, and have been the object of much interest among the people of the town. Their engagement was announced a few weeks ago, and the people of the town were much pleased with the news. The couple are both young and healthy, and are expected to have a happy and prosperous future.

The marriage took place in the afternoon, and the bride and groom were received with great enthusiasm by the people of the town. The wedding was a happy and prosperous one, and the couple are expected to have a long and happy future together.
