CHILDREN OF WAR.

They are no less grateful for the benefit of the public schools.

The difference in the character of the people and public services in the various States of the Union, is so great, that it is the duty of the Legislature to provide for the education of the children of the public schools. In the United States, the public schools are supported by the States, and it is their duty to provide for the education of the children of the public schools, and to provide for the education of the children of the public schools in their respective States, and to provide for the education of the children of the public schools in the different States.
