THE NEW YORK Herald, through its agent for the District of Columbia, has received an account of the arrival of the new government at Washington College. The president, Mr. Lincoln, arrived last Sunday, accompanied by his family, and was met by a large number of citizens, who had assembled to welcome him. The event was marked by a grand display of national flags and music. The president was received with great enthusiasm, and addressed the assembled multitude in a spirit of high patriotism and national pride. He spoke of the great need of unity and harmony in these critical times, and appealed to the patriotism of all citizens to support the government in its noble task of preserving the Union. The address was received with rapturous applause, and the president was carried away in triumph. The arrival of the new government at Washington College is a happy event, and augurs well for the future of the country.
