THE INQUEST.

Mr. Key's Body Taken from the Moat by the Coroner—Arraignment of the Suspects—The Grand Jury—The Scripture Reference—Mr. Key's Case Referred to the Grand Jury.

Mr. Key's body was deposited in the dock of the courthouse on Monday afternoon. The coroner, in the course of his examination, was enabled to identify the body as Mr. Key's, and to administer an oath to the jury, that it was the same that had been taken away on Saturday night. The inspection of the body was avoided, as it was in a state of rigor mortis, and the time of death was estimated to be Saturday night, before 12 o'clock. The body was conveyed to the morgue, and the coroner directed that it should be examined by the medical officers of the place, and that the cause of death should be ascertained.

Mr. Key's case was referred to the grand jury, which was convened on Tuesday, and Mr. Key's name was placed on the list of suspects. The coroner, in his address, stated that Mr. Key's body was found in the moat, and that it was impossible to determine the cause of death, as the body was in a state of rigor mortis. The coroner said that Mr. Key's body was found in the moat, and that the cause of death was unknown. The coroner stated that Mr. Key's body was found in the moat, and that the cause of death was unknown. <td>The following most touching fragment of a letter from a mother to her children, who were separated from her by the war, is a striking illustration of the sacrifices made by mothers in the interest of their families and their country. The letter was written by an old woman, who, despite her age and the hardships she endured, remained loyal to her country and her children. It is a poignant reminder of the sacrifices made by mothers during times of war.</td>

COUNTY NEWS.

Publish the Laws.-We mean on the 1st day of January next, to publish the twenty-seventh edition of the Laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We believe the system is a good one, and that the time has come when it is desirable to begin this work.

Frank.-We have been looking at the county, and find that the people are doing well. The roads are in good condition, and the government is in a flourishing state. The people are satisfied with the government, and we believe that they will continue to be so.

LOCAL NEWS.

Newspaper Change.-The Wellington Journal, published in Washington, D.C., is now in the hands of the publishers of the Valley Spirit. We understand that the paper will be published weekly, and that it will be devoted to the interests of the people of the valley.

Southampton.-The President of the Board of Education for Southampton, Mass., has asked for information concerning the condition of the schools in the town. The Board of Education has been asked to report to the President, and we hope that the report will be favorable.

LOCAL NEWS.

Our Correspondent reports that the people of the valley are doing well. The roads are in good condition, and the government is in a flourishing state. The people are satisfied with the government, and we believe that they will continue to be so.
