HARMONY CONVENTION

HENRY G. FOSTER, associated with

The Democratic State Convention for the election of delegates to the Democratic National Convention, assembled on Wednesday afternoon, February 25th, 1878, at the Court House in the city of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

addressing the convention, he urged the necessity of a strong and united Democratic party. He also spoke of the need for unity within the party and the importance of electing delegates who would support the principles of the Democratic party.

Mr. Foster also mentioned the importance of addressing the people on the issues that were of concern to them. He emphasized the need for the party to present a strong and unified front in the upcoming election.

In conclusion, Mr. Foster concluded his speech by expressing his confidence in the ability of the Democratic party to emerge victorious in the upcoming election. He ended his speech by encouraging the delegates to work together towards a common goal.

The convention was adjourned, with Mr. Foster being elected as the Chair of the Democratic State Convention for the election of delegates to the Democratic National Convention.
Mr. McPherson's Speech.

Mr. McPherson, in introducing the resolutions, said that he was...