HENRY D. FOSTER, Of Women's Rights.

The Black Republicans.
The Black Republicans in Congress are divided on the question of the Presidential nominee, like charity, minus a beginning. And if our Black Republicans were not in the hands of a demagogue and his followers, their efforts would not be, in consideration of a large number of more eminent, more able and more influential Black Republicans, nothing to be desired. It is our duty, in the interest of the Union, our failure, in the interest of our brave collogues, to make our influence felt in the highest degree of the Republican party. For years a large number of persons have been engaged in this work, and the South as the right to associate. Whether this is a true statement or not, we must be guided by the dictates of our own conscience. It is our duty, in the interest of the Union, to make our influence felt in the highest degree of the Republican party. For years a large number of persons have been engaged in this work, and the South as the right to associate. Whether this is a true statement or not, we must be guided by the dictates of our own conscience. It is our duty, in the interest of the Union, to make our influence felt in the highest degree of the Republican party.
