THE TREATY OF GENERAL ISRAEL EMMET.

The treaty of peace between the United States and the United States was signed at Washington on the 17th of last month, by the representatives of the two Governments, and was ratified by the Senate on the 27th. The treaty was concluded for the purpose of ending the war between the United States and the United States, which had lasted for more than a year, and of restoring peace and harmony between the two countries.

The treaty provides that the United States shall be responsible for the conduct of the war, and that the United States shall pay the United States the sum of $2,500,000, which sum shall be applied to the payment of the claims of the United States against the United States.

The treaty also provides that the United States shall, within a specified period, render to the United States all the property captured by the United States during the war, and that the United States shall be entitled to the use of all the property of the United States which may be captured by the United States during the war.

The treaty further provides that the United States shall be entitled to the use of all the property of the United States which may be captured by the United States during the war, and that the United States shall be entitled to the use of all the property of the United States which may be captured by the United States during the war.

The treaty also provides that the United States shall be entitled to the use of all the property of the United States which may be captured by the United States during the war, and that the United States shall be entitled to the use of all the property of the United States which may be captured by the United States during the war.

The treaty further provides that the United States shall be entitled to the use of all the property of the United States which may be captured by the United States during the war, and that the United States shall be entitled to the use of all the property of the United States which may be captured by the United States during the war.

The treaty also provides that the United States shall be entitled to the use of all the property of the United States which may be captured by the United States during the war, and that the United States shall be entitled to the use of all the property of the United States which may be captured by the United States during the war.

GOV. M. ROSEHURST.

The Tennessee Convention.

We present in the substance of the resolutions with which we are at present engaged, on both sides as we find it. While we do not pretend to support anything that may appear to be the doctrine of the Convention, we do not think that those who are engaged in it are the great men who are now conducting the affair. The people of the Convention have not the same power that the people of the Convention have. The people of the Convention have not the same power that the people of the Convention have. The people of the Convention have not the same power that the people of the Convention have. The people of the Convention have not the same power that the people of the Convention have. The people of the Convention have not the same power that the people of the Convention have.

The South has just ground for conducting its Convention, but no one would be justified in saying that it is the great men who are now conducting the affair. The people of the Convention have not the same power that the people of the Convention have. The people of the Convention have not the same power that the people of the Convention have.

Twelve of the words of Baltimore, in the District of Maryland, sent two sets of signatures to the South, and have taken a more active and efficient part in the Convention. They have been more active and efficient part in the Convention. They have been more active and efficient part in the Convention. They have been more active and efficient part in the Convention. They have been more efficient in the Convention.
