1. The number of volunteer regiments that are on the National Guard in this State, and have been previously hailed as being the best in the nation, is remarkable. They are all well drilled, well armed, and well equipped, and will be ready to march at a moment's notice, if required. The volunteers are all eager to serve their country, and will do so with fidelity and courage. They are led by officers who are well trained and experienced, and who will guide them to victory.

LOCAL NEWS

ST LOUIS. - There has been considerable talk here of the invasion of the South, and it is generally supposed that the Missouri Border, north and west of the Governor's headquarters, will be the object of attack. The movements of the enemy are well known, but the exact time of their advance is not known. The Governor has ordered the call of all the militia of the state, and the adjutant general has been placed in charge of the defenses. The people are preparing for the conflict, and are confident of victory.

The General Government permanently occupied the capital of Kentucky, and a large number of volunteers have already enlisted. The state is in a state of high excitement, and the people are determined to resist any attempt at invasion. The Governor has called out the militia, and the volunteers are organizing for the defense of the state. The people are confident of success, and are prepared for the conflict.
