ATTACK ON FORT SUMNER.

Maryland Unionistsane Convention.

The United States Convention at Baltimore was largely attended by the city dwellers. The meeting was called to order by the chairman, who read a resolution of the State convention, the adjournment of which was demanded by the resolutions of the State convention.

This convention was also called to order by the chairman, who then read the minutes of the State convention. The chairman then called the roll, and ordered a vote to be taken on the question of adjournment. The vote was carried, and the convention adjourned.

There were then two messages from those who had already been appointed to the committee to prepare a report on the subject of the attack on Fort Sumner, which was then read.

The attack on Fort Sumner was a blow to the Union, and it was generally believed that it was the work of the Confederates. The government had taken measures to prevent its recurrence, and it was hoped that the Unionists would be able to carry the attack.

The authorities of the Union were well aware of the danger, and it was believed that the attack on Fort Sumner would be followed by many others. The authorities were therefore prepared to meet the crisis, and it was hoped that the Unionists would be able to carry the attack.
