PAGE 2

It was a warm evening in early June, when Joe and Harry were making their way home from the store. They were both in a hurry, as they had to get back to the farm before dark.

Harry was carrying a bag full of groceries, while Joe was carrying a box of tools. They had been working all day, and were both looking forward to a quiet evening at home.

As they walked along the dusty road, they could hear the sounds of the children playing in the yard. They were all excited, as it was the first time they had been able to spend a whole day together.

Joe and Harry decided to take a short break and sit down on the porch. They both took a deep breath of the fresh air and enjoyed the warm sunshine.

Joe looked at Harry and said, "I haven't seen you in a while. How's the farm doing?"

Harry smiled and said, "It's doing well. The crops are looking good and the livestock is healthy."

Joe nodded and said, "That's good to hear. We've been working hard to make sure everything is in order."

The two men sat in silence for a moment, enjoying the peace and quiet of the farm.

Joe then turned to Harry and said, "I wanted to thank you for everything you've done for us. Without you, we wouldn't be where we are today."

Harry looked at Joe and said, "It's nothing. We're all in this together."

Joe smiled and said, "I know. And I'm glad to have you as a friend."

The two men then stood up and continued on their way, both looking forward to what the future held for them.
