Correspondence

From "The Army of Virginia"

Washington, D.C., Sept. 11th, 1862

The terrible Mocks that promised a thousand successes are in a dayimpse in ruins. The enemy attacked us at 5 o'clock this morning, the left of our infantry was driven back and the right repulsed. The enemy have gained the summit of this ridge and threaten the right. The Federal losses are about 500.

The expected meeting of the 9th Congress is near at hand. Some of the delegates have already arrived and others will be here soon. The talk is about the removal of the capital of the United States. It is expected that Congress will meet at Washington, D.C., in November.

The President is expected to arrive here on the 15th of this month. The army is in a state of great excitement. The officers are all eager to receive the President. The troops are in high spirits and are ready for action. The President is expected to arrive here on the 15th of this month. The army is in a state of great excitement.
