The above are sample specimens of Peaches which were grown in a season of extreme drought, as all which could not have produced some of the best fruit in the state. The result has been highly successful to the tree and orchard, and the results indicate that this variety should be grown in all parts of the state, both for the production of good fruit and the profit derived from the sale of peaches. The peaches are of excellent quality and are very popular with the market. They produce a good crop each year and are highly valued by the consumers.

The above are sample specimens of Peaches which were grown in a season of extreme drought, as all which could not have produced some of the best fruit in the state. The result has been highly successful to the tree and orchard, and the results indicate that this variety should be grown in all parts of the state, both for the production of good fruit and the profit derived from the sale of peaches. They produce a good crop each year and are highly valued by the consumers.