The Valley Spirit.

The Legislature of Pennsylvania was at the time of the adjournment of its session last week, in the midst of a discussion of the financial condition of the State, and the measures necessary to be taken to meet the extraordinary demands upon its revenues. The bill proposed by the Administration was adopted by the Senate, after a long and hotly contested debate, but was defeated by the House. The Governor is reported to have declared that he would call another session of the Legislature, and to have recommended the passage of a bill providing for the taxation of the estates of deceased persons, in order to meet the extraordinary demands upon the State. The bill was reported by the Committee on Finance, and was adopted by the House, after a long and hotly contested debate, but was defeated by the Senate.
