POETRY. Annabel Lee.

It was many and many a year ago, In a kingdom by the sea, That a maiden there lived whom you may know By the name of Annabel Lee; And this maiden she lived with no other thought Than to love and be loved by me.

Grandeur of God.

Upon the paths of nature, and, when all In voices whisper, and in silent things Are reaching the deep beauty of the world, One at its simple altar, and the God, Who bath the living waters, shall be there.

Granteur of God. You can witness in the glowing gifts of nature, in the majestic and the majestic of the world, in the majestic of the world, in the majestic of the world.

A Singular Story.

The Mason Telegraph tells the following and story of the war: 'I learned on yesterday the circumstances of a melancholy tragedy which in a young lady, a part of the country, was played. A lady's young officer was betrothed to her. He fell on the fatal field of Shrapburn. She loved him dearly, and was afflicted for beyond what ladies of a more ordinary nature could be expected to endure.

Beautiful Extracts.

Music—There is a strange, unaccountable and dream-like beauty in music, which can subside the proud-like spirit, and gliding into the hush of the heart, will nestle there stilling its most tumultuous throbbings, and filling it with calm, peaceful influences.

Beautiful Men.

Mrs. Denison, in speaking of men, says: We never yet saw a genuinely beautiful man who was not the soul of honor. Though such may be beautiful and stammer, and shrug their shoulders awkwardly, unable to throw off their awkwardness, yet would express, yet command them to us for friends.

The End of Time.

We are passing on, a cowl not surely on, to our graves. Every day brings us nearer to that ungodly world, that strange country, into which so many of us, to dwell in happiness or misery forever.

The Future of the South.

There is a hopeful future for the South, but it is not to be found in the councils of those time servers and submissionists who are for yielding unconditional obedience to every behest of a political party in power, and in anxious blind hope in authority may upon them that they may give evidence of their fidelity. The South has nothing of good to expect from its (timid) and mercenary press. It has nothing of good to expect from misrepresentatives in Congress, who claim as a decisive qualification, and a peculiar merit, that they are wasters that in a war which invaded the homes of the South they were the heartless creatures who stood mute and neutral in the face of the grand tragedy that ran with blood and tears, without aid, comfort or countenance to their countrymen dying before their eyes, reaching out their hands for aid, and anxious striving to reach the glorious banner of Lee, and Jackson, and Johnston, and Pickett, and Gordon!

Remarkable Views of Mr. Seward.

Mr. Seward is a power in the Government. What does he say on the subject? Let us see. (The New York correspondent of the Mason Telegraph, writing on the 16th of October, says: 'Since I have introduced Mr. Seward's name, I will refer to a conversation he had a few days since with Thurston Wood—Fullerton Davis being the subject. Wood said, 'Davis had been changed, and expressed himself quite warmly on the subject. Mr. Seward then proposed the query: 'Why should you hang him?' to which Wood replied, 'if I would hang him for treason.' Mr. Seward said, 'I would hang him for treason.' Mr. Seward said, 'I would hang him for treason.' Mr. Seward said, 'I would hang him for treason.'

What is a Pop.

The Pop is a complete specimen of an outside philosopher. He is one-third cooler, one-sixth patient, one-fourth wiser, and one-fifth a better man. He is one-third cooler, one-sixth patient, one-fourth wiser, and one-fifth a better man.

A Traveller at Rest.

The Memphis-Greenville-Jackson-Atlanta-Montgomery 'Appeal' is revived. The first number of volume sixteen was published in Memphis on the 10th of July, 1862, and was printed in the Memphis office in 1862, and which was kept out of the hands of the Union army during the war, though it had to do some tall travelling to accomplish this. It was worked by the same pressman, Andy Harman, who was shelled out of Jackson when Grant made his famous march from Brownsville.

The Child's Pocket Etiquette.

(Obey these and you shall have five dollars every fourth of July, which you may give to the poor.) I. Always say Yes, Sir. No, Sir. Yes, papa. No, papa. Thank you. No, thank you. Good night. Good morning. Never say How or Which, for What. Use no slang terms. Remember that good spelling, reading, writing and grammar are the base of all true education.

Gen. Wade Hampton.

We take the following extracts from the address of Gen'l Wade Hampton to the people of South Carolina: 'How years past it has been the boast of our State that there was but one party within her limits. Commendable and vital as that state of affairs was during the war, it is scarcely, if at all, less so now. Every association of the past, every duty of the present, every hope of the future, bid us still to stand 'shoulder to shoulder.'
