PRESIDENT'S VETO MESSAGE.

To the House of Representatives of the United States.

I return, with my objections, to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, the bill entitled "An act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts."

This bill makes a donation to the several States of twenty thousand acres of the public lands for each senator and representative in the present Congress...

According to a report from the Interior Department, based upon the present number of senators and representatives, the lands given to the States amount to six million and sixty thousand acres...

The object of this gift, as stated by the bill, is "the endowment, support, and maintenance of at least one college in each State..."

As there does not appear from the bill to be any beneficiaries in existence to which this endowment can be applied, such State is required "to provide, within five years at least, not less than one college, or the grant to said State shall cease."

The grant in land itself is confined to such States as have public lands within their limits worth one dollar and twenty five cents per acre, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior...

These grants of land and land scrip to each of the thirty three States are made upon certain conditions, the principal of which is, that if the land shall be lost or diminished on account of unfortunate investments, or otherwise, the deficiency shall be replaced and made good by the respective States.

I shall now proceed to state my objections to this bill. I deem it to be both inexpedient and unconstitutional. 1. This bill has been passed at a period when we can with great difficulty raise sufficient revenue to sustain the expenses of the government.

solitaries who have not already parted with their land warrants as to government. It is easy to perceive that with this glut of the market government can sell little or no lands at one dollar and twenty five cents per acre, while the price of bounty-land warrants and scrip shall be reduced to half this sum.

2. Waiting for the present the question of constitutional power, what effect will this bill have on the relations established between the federal and State governments? The constitution is a grant to Congress of a few enumerated but most important powers relating chiefly to war, peace, foreign and domestic commerce, negotiation, and other subjects which can be best or alone exercised beneficially by the common government.

Under this bill it is provided that scientific and classical studies shall not be excluded from them. In fact, it would be almost impossible to sustain them without such a provision; for no father would incur the expense of sending a son to one of these institutions for the sole purpose of making him a scientific farmer or mechanic.

3. This bill, should it become a law, will operate greatly to the injury of the new States. The progress of settlement and the increase of an industrious population owning an interest in the soil they cultivate, are the causes which will build them up into great and flourishing Commonwealths.

4. It is extremely doubtful, as my last, whether this bill would contribute to the advancement of agriculture and the mechanic arts—objects the dignity and value of which cannot be too highly appreciated.

the intended objects. As donors, we shall possess no control over our own gift after it shall have passed from our hands. It is true that the State legislatures are required to stipulate that they will faithfully execute the trust in the manner prescribed by the bill.

5. This bill will injuriously interfere with existing colleges in the different States, in many of which agriculture is taught as a science, and in all of which it ought to be so taught. These institutions of learning have grown up with the growth of the country under the fostering care of the State and the munificence of individuals to meet the advancing demands for education.

Under this bill it is provided that scientific and classical studies shall not be excluded from them. In fact, it would be almost impossible to sustain them without such a provision; for no father would incur the expense of sending a son to one of these institutions for the sole purpose of making him a scientific farmer or mechanic.

6. But does Congress possess the power, under the constitution, to make a donation of public lands to the different States of the Union to provide colleges for the purpose of educating their own people?

I presume the general proposition is undeniable that Congress does not possess the power to appropriate money in the treasury raised by taxes on the people of the United States for the purpose of educating the people of the respective States.

But it is contended that the public lands are placed upon different footing from money raised by taxation, and that the proceeds arising from their sale are not subject to the limitations of the constitution, but may be appropriated or given away by Congress, at its own discretion, to States, corporations, or individuals, for any purpose they may deem expedient.

ence to induce the belief that the framers of the constitution, after having limited the powers of Congress to certain precise, and specific objects, intended, by employing the words "dispose of," to give that body unlimited power over the vast public domain. It would be a strange anomaly, indeed, to have created two funds, the one by taxation confined to the execution of the enumerated powers delegated to Congress, and the other from the public lands, applicable to all subjects, foreign and domestic, which Congress might designate.

But I cannot so read the words "dispose of" as to make them embrace the idea of "giving away." The true meaning of words is always to be ascertained by the subject to which they are applied, and the known general intent of the lawgiver.

It is unnecessary to refer to the history of the times to establish the known fact that this statement of the Chief Justice is perfectly well founded. That it never was intended by the framers of the constitution that these lands should be given away by Congress is manifest from the concluding portion of the same clause.

Now, if Congress had no power to appropriate the money with which these lands were purchased, is it not clear that the power over the lands is equally limited? The mere conversion of this money into land could not confer upon Congress new power over the disposition of land which they had not possessed over money.

sections of the public lands in each township for the use of schools, as well as of additional sections for a State university. Such grants are not, in my opinion, a violation of the constitution. The United States is a great land proprietor, and from the very nature of this relation it is both the right and the duty of Congress, as trustee, to manage those lands as any other prudent proprietor would manage them for his own best advantage.

But I cannot so read the words "dispose of" as to make them embrace the idea of "giving away." The true meaning of words is always to be ascertained by the subject to which they are applied, and the known general intent of the lawgiver.

There are more than two hundred cabins built here, and two hundred more are to be erected before the last of March. A good hotel will be ready for "the boarders" by the end of May. It is to be two stories high, seventy five feet in width, and one hundred and twenty feet in length.

About two years ago, a delicious slope on the margin of James river, near the Petersburg bridge, was made the place of deposit for the cinders from the Tredegar Works, at the instance of the owner of the property, Mr. James Thomas, who desired to improve it. The deposit was continued from time to time, until a large level surface was formed, and it was then discontinued, in consequence of the discovery that the substance of cinders, originally deposited, had ignited.

A photograph of Bayard Taylor. A scenic writer in the New York Atlas the photographer Bayard Taylor, "the great American Traveler." The picture is by no means striking, but it is one that most readers will admit to be true.

"The second class is composed of a numberless number of literary rag pickers and scavengers, who scrounge and perambulate the thoroughfares of the world, picking up material for making book-books to sell. Wherever transition from place to place can be rapidly effected by means of diligences, railroads and steamboats, there there is no deprivation to be suffered, and first resort is had to every one's conversations, about, then to their count-note-book in hand, "taking observations."

At the head of this host, with a hand ear and the aid of tagging strings, heavy lead of the rich spoils of the world, are Bayard Taylor, the most successful quack and humbug, except Joel T. Headly with his Sacred Mountains, Generalis and Marabala, to be found in the American literature good for no useful purpose except to sustain the book-trade and keep printers' fingers busy—and not impossible of attainment in more laudable ways.

Bayard is a good-natured, good-hearted, gentlemanly, agreeable, generous, kind, pleasant fellow, who writes some clever little pieces which will do him credit after him, but to the character of a true traveler he has about as much claim as Eliza Burritt has to that of a son of Yuleka. I have no doubt he estimates the value of his travels, of his books and lectures, quite as low as I do, and this is the time he begins to say "I am not a man for money," and "I am not a man for money."

There are more than two hundred cabins built here, and two hundred more are to be erected before the last of March. A good hotel will be ready for "the boarders" by the end of May. It is to be two stories high, seventy five feet in width, and one hundred and twenty feet in length.

A Reply to the Transcript.

It is a very common thing for men who themselves have not a particle of independence, to charge a want of it upon others...

It does not become the Transcript to throw off in the face of everybody. Two of the three proprietors of that paper...

We repeat, two of the three proprietors of that paper have held public office, and we doubt not the third would gladly accept it...

The Transcript says we desired and abused the President when he had no favors to bestow. We would like the cooeyous editors to answer...

It is the strongest thing in the world that the North should be opposed to the acquisition of Cuba...

had political occasions that we depicted, and they also know that we undertook his championship under circumstances that were calculated to put our constancy and courage to the severest test...

We understand what the Transcript is driving at. It wants to cover up its own tracks. It wants to crawl out of the responsibility it assumed by publishing the North American's article...

It wants to attack the Democracy on the Tariff question, and as a preliminary step seeks to divert attention from the fact that it published an article going to prove that no revision of the Tariff is needed...

Our Trade with Cuba.

The President's recommendation of the purchase of Cuba, and the introduction of a bill by Mr. SULLIVAN to facilitate the acquisition...

Now if we possessed the Island, we should have no such annual balance as this to pay; for the Northern and Middle States of the Union would then supply Cuba with merchandise far exceeding in value that received from her...

The population of Cuba is at least one million. If she were a part of the Union, she would probably pay from the grain growing States at least ten million dollars worth of flour a year...

It is the strongest thing in the world that the North should be opposed to the acquisition of Cuba. If the public sentiment of the country should be directed to the acquisition of Cuba...

North that should be for and the South against the measure. For if the annexation of Cuba would benefit one section and damage another, it is clearly the North that would be benefited and the South that would be damaged...

The North does not produce, and consequently is obliged to purchase, the very articles that Cuba produces in abundance and sells. But the North does produce a surplus of the very things that Cuba cannot produce and is therefore compelled to buy...

But slavery! Oh, the mischievous nigger! Will he never cease to stand in the way of our welfare? Well, what of slavery? It exists in a far worse form in Cuba than in the United States...

Congress.

It would be tedious to enter into a detail of the proceedings of Congress in its closing week. As usual, all was bustle and confusion in the two houses...

It does not strike us that this Congress has done more than common to entitle it to the gratitude of the nation. If it did anything of more than ordinary merit at its first session we have unfortunately forgotten the fact...

The chief delight of this Congress seems to have been to treat the recommendations of the President with the greatest possible contempt. All the great measures...

This Congress deserves to live in history as the Dwarf Congress of the United States. It has dwarfed every branch of the public service that it could lay its dwarfing hands on...

So regardless did this Congress show itself of all consequences, that on the last day of the session, and within a few hours of the time fixed by the Constitution for adjournment, it passed a bill...

felt it to be his duty, notwithstanding their previous disregard of all his recommendations, to send in a special message imploring the members of both houses...

Horrible Murder by a Mother.

The New York Daily Journal of Saturday gives the following details of the murder of a little boy by his own mother:

"It will be remembered by our readers that some weeks ago we noticed the arrest of a woman, named Mary Ann Brown, on a charge of infanticide. She was found in the yard of a house in the Seventh Ward, with a sickly, screaming baby of four years of age, in a state of utter destitution. She stated at the time that she was the wife of Joseph Brown, a laborer in a factory, who had deserted her."

"The Thursday morning Mrs. Brown called the child to her, and as he approached, she seized him by the neck of his neck, and on her person cast his throat from her neck, severing the head from the body. The child died almost immediately."

MARKETS. BALTIMORE MARKETS. FLOUR - There has been a limited inquiry prevailing for flour throughout the week, not withstanding which the tendency of prices has been to advance. The very small receipts, and the limited quantity offered for sale of such brands as are usually desirable, have enabled holders to maintain their firmness, and to meet over the moderate demand which has existed. Full prices have been paid, and at the close we find for Howard Street and Ohio Street an advance has been established on the closing rates of last week. The receipts from the country have been falling off for some time past, and the very extravagant prices of which wheat is held have induced our city millers either to stop or to curtail their output, consequently our city receipts are quite limited. The week held here in fact, has not been so successful, but with a better prospect for an increased demand than is now visible, we think it probable to prevent any material advance in the present season.

SAD FAMILY HISTORY—Two years ago, the wife of John Hale, a respectable merchant of Cincinnati, died, and I took to drink to relieve his sorrow. His daughters then left to console with poverty, and without the good advice and example of a father, became a prey to vicious and riotous thoughts. An impromptu sprang up between a man named Mitchell and the eldest daughter, and it is a moment of sensitive appreciation of the wrong done her, she has repented, and for this was tried, and sent to the Penitentiary. The downward course of the daughters was then rapid. Two of them had been convicted of grand larceny, and will be sent to the State Prison. The remaining one—the youngest—is now in the House of Refuge.

PARTY GERMAN GIRL—Christina Steiburg, preferred a grave charge against Broadway merchant New York, on Saturday, alleging that while in Switzerland, he seduced her at a hotel, where she was a chamber maid, overcame her moral scruples, and left her, after giving her money for her passage to America, and his own address. She reached New York in December, and attended an infant was born to her, and then sought the merchant. He repudiated the child, and her child, but the coming into Court, the reporters say, has passed back to Switzerland, will be paid, and the water hushed up.

FEMALE EDUCATION IN TURKEY—The Sultan of Turkey has given orders to be carried into execution a plan proposed by the Minister of Public Instruction whereby the girls of the Ottoman Empire will henceforward not only learn all the works executed by the needle, but also reading, writing, arithmetic, geography and history. Six primary schools are to be established in each of the thirteen sections of the city of Constantinople, and one superior school in each section to complete the education of the inferior schools. The addition of this measure will not only give very considerably the range of instruction given to females in Turkey, but is a preparatory step towards the intellectual emancipation of the Mohammedan woman.

EDUCATION—Everything is educational, the trains of thought upon which you spend the evening; the conversation walks, incidents of to-morrow. And so ought to be. We may thank the world for its infinite means of instruction and edification which keep our faculties awake and in action, while it is our important office to preside over that action, as guide to some divine result.—J. F. Foster.

THE BALTIMORE COAL OIL COMPANY—have just returned from a visit to the works of the Coal Oil and Paraffine company of Baltimore, situated on Leadenhall and Hambro streets. The buildings of this establishment cover an area of about two hundred feet, and were erected at a cost of one hundred thousand dollars. They possess a capacity for manufacturing ten thousand gallons of oil per day of superior quality as to beauty and light. THREE DUNCAN AND THE CAT.

Once there was a little boy named Duncan. The boys would call him Three Duncan, because he never would call his cat. One day he was playing with an old cat in the yard of the school, and the cat was jumping about the top of the old table, close along Duncan's feet. The cat fell right on poor Tabby's head and killed her. What do you think of that? The cat was a pet of the school, and used to sit on a cushion at his side, and was called the "cat."

HOPE AND MEMORY.

A little baby lay in the cradle, and Hope and Memory were sitting by its side. When the baby awoke, Hope patted its cheek, and when its young sister brought a flower, and when it clapped its wings and crawled, Hope took of brighter eyes, when it would gather for itself.
