VALLEY SPIRIT.

CHAMBERSBURG, PA.

VOLUME 13. WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 21, 1850. NUMBER 9.

THE WARFARE OF THE OPPOSITION.

The Kansas agitation being dead beyond all possibility of resurrection; there being no longer the least remnant of hope that the right of Congress to create or prohibit slavery in the Territories can be asserted in opposition to the almost universally accepted democratic principle of popular sovereignty...

MORE AMALGAMATION.

A Mysterious Disappearance Accounted For—Rich Developments Among the British Abolitionists. The Detroit Free Press relates the particulars of a most disgraceful case of amalgamation, slopement and exposure that we have heard of for many a day.

TERRIBLE TRAINING OF WOMEN

The Church of England Review has an article on Female Education, from which the following passage is taken: Much remains to be done in winning over of people's minds ridiculous ideas of a certain purely fictitious style of living...

IMPORTANT METALLIC DISCOVERY

One of the startling discoveries of the age has just been made, and its effects upon the commercial affairs of the world cannot be foretold. We allude to the late discovery in the process of making or smelting of a new metal called the Hyrcos or Hyrcos metal, which has been named after the inventor.

POLITICS IN KANSAS—SLAVERY.

Kansas as a grain-growing country. Nebraska City, N.T. Aug. 1, 1850. Here, shot in on the east by the Missouri river, and on the west by the Rocky Mountains, lies the garden of our magnificent country.

THE WHEAT CROP OF WISCONSIN.

The Milwaukee Wisconsin has no doubt that the crop of spring wheat now harvested in that State is larger than any former year.

FROM THE UPPER MISSOURI.

The steamer Spread Eagle, Capt. Chouteau, arrived in this city last night from the upper river. She has been eight hundred and fifty miles above the mouth of Yellow Stone...

FUNERAL OF YEH.

We omitted to mention in the summary of Canton news, last mail, that Yeh's body arrived there May 14, creating little or no sensation. The next morning a roomy long boat was sent for the case in which the coffin was secured, and 24 hours afterwards the boat was seen a little below the Cumfaw, on the Hunan shore...

THE LONDON TIMES OFFICE.—MR. STONEY.

Mr. Stoney, son of one of the proprietors of the Rochester Democrat, writes to that paper an account of his visit to the office of the London Times. We copy a portion of this narrative:

"OLD CHURCH BELLS."

out of her? "Yes, sir," replied the engineer, "the main began to give in the big bolts you see." "Well, it's about time to begin," growled the captain, "that darned old boiler is half a length ahead already."

is another moment was on the upper deck, and as for it he could get. The Washington was now far ahead of her rival, and shortly after the course of her escape, she was rounded up to a landing, proclaimed that the safety valve had been relieved of its duty, but the Frenchman had seen enough of that sort, and the moment she touched the wharf, he sprang ashore with his traveling bag, uttering a few words of broken English, and heartily cursing all American steamboats.

BOTH SIDES.

A man in his carriage was talking along. A lady dressed well by her side. In a moment she looked like a queen, And to her a king in his pride. A woman stood on the street as they passed. The carriage stopped for the eye. And she, as he looked at her with a thrill, "I wish I was rich and you could be!"

Knell out dearly, Measured and weary, Sad old bells from the steeple tower, Mourn the bells from the steeple tower, Solemnly, solemnly, Passeth the course from the portal to-day.

The engineer dodged round among his machinery, using a bearing hole, tightening a joint with his wrench there, and at last, after making his head down the fire-room scuttle and singing out, "drive it to her, boy."

My text is contained in these words, which most of you probably saw somewhere, or some where else: "Pray, tell me how the devil was dressed?" "Oh, he was in his Sunday best."

A FRENCHMAN'S FIRST STEAM-BOAT RACE.

The steamer Washington was shooting down the Ohio, with her usual motley crowd of passengers on board, when suddenly a rival boat, the Comet, swung out from her wharf and ranged up alongside, with the evident intention of inviting to a race.

The speed of the engine perceptibly increased, and soon the bewildered Frenchman could scarcely distinguish the piston-rod and cross-head, as they bobbed up and down. "L'Enfer!" he cried, "she will give her teeth to pieces! Where is your eye? you call him de clock to tell how high de steam?"

A SHORT PATENT SERMON.

SEEKING INFORMATION.

"Can you direct me to the Hotel?" inquired a gentleman with a carpet bag, of a burly Irishman, standing on the steps of a railroad station. "Faith," was the reply, "it's just I that can direct you. You see you are going to that street, till you come to Thady O'Mulligan's shop. Then—"

With considerable reluctance, the little frogster consented, asking first to be allowed a look at the safety valve. Tom led him round under the walking beam, and with a grin showed him the safety valve; and the two "fiftysixes" with which it was loaded.

AMUSING BLENDER OF A MILESIAN FEMALE.

We heard a story of Milesian stupidity yesterday, that bangs Buncker, outstrips in point of absurdity anything ever said by Charles Lever, and has the additional merit of being true.

PENNING SKAMON.

The following curious string of puns is taken from a scarce work published in the reign of James I. A divine, more willing to pay with words than to be serious in expounding his text, spoke thus in his sermon:—"This dial shows that we must die, yet notwithstanding, all houses are turned into altars; our cares are turned into cakes; our Paradise into a pair of dice; matrimony into a mater o' meag; and marriage into a merry yew. Our dielines have become dry vines; it was not so in the days of Noah-uh-uh!"

The fire room was truly a frightful place. The furnace doors were red hot, and the steam hissed angrily from every seam in the boilers, while the pounding and jarring of the ponderous machinery overhead shook the floor on which they stood like a small earthquake.

PASSING AWAY.

The evening breeze is passing away and wafting away on its airy wing fragments of our most precious things. The flowers that spring around our pathway, though they have just emerged from the gloomy shades of winter, must soon decay, and the lofty trees that have scarce thrown around them their cloaks, to shelter us from the summer's heat, are passing swiftly away.

TENNESSEE.

Gov. G. Harris (Dem.) of Tennessee, is, according to the latest accounts, re-elected by a majority of 8,000. In the 11th District the Opposition claim the election of Erasmus Edwards to Congress, and also their candidate in the 1st District. If so, they will have seven out of ten Representatives—a gain of four.—Both branches of the Legislature are Democratic by small majorities.

THE WORLD IS FULL OF BEAUTY.

There is beauty in the forest, Where the trees are green and fair; There is beauty in the meadow, Where the wildflowers wave the air; There is beauty in the sunlight, And a soft blue beam above, On the world is full of beauty, When the heart is full of love.

I could not possibly have the handling of so much money and hold on to my religion. Yes, brethren, I've seen the devil in clerical dress, holding forth to an adoring congregation in most eloquent style, fomenting the garden of heaven with the forest of exiles, and describing hell as a hundred times hotter than he himself could ever make it with a cargo of rain, pitch and sulphur. His mother's name was not visible while his other ornaments were the words of truth and soberness—just there was a hole behind for the tail to come through; and the tip end of it might be seen peeping from beneath his ecclesiastical cloak as he walked in the highways, as proud as a peacock and stiff as a roll of lead.

VALLEY SPIRIT.

CHAMBERSBURG, PA.

Wednesday Morning, Aug 24, 1859.

J. M. COOPER, Editor.
Auditor General,
RICH. L. WRIGHT,
Of Philadelphia.
Surveyor General,
JOHN ROWE,
Of Franklin County.

Forney's Press on Personalities.

Severe and protracted illness has heretofore prevented us from noticing the Philadelphia Press' outbreak of virtuous indignation at the personalities of the Valley Spirit. Some observations of FORNEY's course had pretty well fortified us against surprise at anything he might do or say, but we must confess to some little astonishment when we read the following in a number of his paper issued about four weeks ago:

The absence of personalities in the most of the newspapers published in Pennsylvania is one of the healthy signs of the times. Not many years ago most of our interior journals were occupied in great part by seditious articles upon the public men of their respective vicinities. We are glad to notice that a wholesome public opinion has cured this evil, and that the distasteful trade can no more safely be pursued so strongly as of old, there is an active virtue among editors to maintain courteous and kindly relations.

There is, it is true, exception to this rule. We have as editors as they are rare. One of these exceptions we notice in a paper published at Chambersburg, called the Valley Spirit, a late number of which contains a coarse and passionate attack upon Col. A. K. McClure, late a representative in the Legislature for Franklin Co.

We are not of Col. McClure's party, and therefore do not speak of him from political animosity; but a somewhat intimate knowledge of his character, and a somewhat close observation of his course as a public man, impel us to declare that we wish every man could read of more such patriotic and public spirited citizens. Bred in the expression of his opinions, and therefore well calculated to provoke emulation on the part of those who may be adverse to him, we do not know where there is to be found one in which he is more to be respected, and who would go farther to sacrifice himself for the interests of his constituents. The idea that such a man could be guilty of anything meretricious or corrupt is an absurdity. We have watched his career with some interest, and believe if there is a true patriot in Pennsylvania and good citizen anywhere, that man is Col. A. K. McClure, of Franklin County.

If we had found this in any other journal than JOHN W. FORNEY'S Black Republican dog-spreader, we might have passed it over in silence. But we cannot permit the greatest libeller of his day and generation to reproach this paper for an infraction of the rules which should govern political controversies, without reminding him of his continual and shameless transgression of all the laws of truth, honor, and decency.

The Philadelphia Press is a reeking pest-house of personal defamation—a filthy sewer of sinking slander—a noxious receptacle of rancorous abuse. Its editor's propensity to libel the great and the good is not displayed occasionally only, but every day; and the very number in which the chapter we have quoted on "personalities" was printed, contained more and grosser personal assaults than can be found in a whole volume of the Valley Spirit.

For nearly two years the Press has carried on, without cessation, the work of libelling the highest personage in the land, the President of the United States. Not only has it lied about Mr. BUCHANAN's official acts, but it has coined the basest and most malignant falsehoods in relation to his private affairs. It has deliberately and maliciously lied about his pecuniary transactions. It has wilfully misrepresented his conduct towards prominent citizens. It has scandalously held him up to public ridicule as an enormous eater, a devotee of the dinner table, when it well knows the simplicity of his tastes and the moderation of his desires. It has accused him of crimes that would consign him to the penitentiary, when all the world knows the perfect uprightness of his entire life. It has striven to injure him by putting in his mouth words that he never uttered. It has sought to assuage him by invading his private apartments and installing about his domestic arrangements in a way that would bring the blush of shame to the cheek of the most inveterate village gossip. In short, it has descended to the lowest personalities, and manufactured the basest falsehoods, and resorted to the most disgraceful means, to injure Mr. BUCHANAN in the estimation of his countrymen.

Nor has the Press stopped here. Every member of the Cabinet has been the subject of its foul abuse and fierce invective. Every person holding office under appointment from the administration has been dignified as the "willing tool of a faithless and tyrannical Executive." Every prominent Democrat who remained faithful to the party has been charged with venality, and been blackguarded in the coarsest and most brutal terms, and with a poisonous responsibility in the history of political parties. The Democratic party in most, from the highest to the lowest, have been libelled as the "willing tool of a faithless and tyrannical Executive." Every prominent Democrat who remained faithful to the party has been charged with venality, and been blackguarded in the coarsest and most brutal terms, and with a poisonous responsibility in the history of political parties. water operates on a mad dog, throwing him into apoplexy and making him froth at the mouth, are now the objects of the Press' tenderest regard. CAMERON was for years FORNEY'S best friend of a political character; WILMOT the impetuous advocate of a growing demagogue; LAUMAN the model of a corrupt and low minded party politician; and CUMMINGS the prince of hypocrites, the Peckham of Peck snuff. Now we have the Press holding up CAMERON as a pure and enlightened Pennsylvania statesman; praising WILMOT as a faithful and fearless champion of popular rights; lauding LAUMAN as an honest politician and a high-toned gentleman; and endorsing the political honesty and religious fervor of CUMMINGS. "Pack snuff" takes snuff and the Press sneers.

FORNEY pours his blackguarding torrents upon the head of every officer of the general government who faithfully performs his duty and is honored with the confidence of the administration. But whenever an official violates the laws of his country and proves himself unworthy of public esteem, the Press rushes to his rescue and defends him with the same ardor that it attacks his honest neighbor. Its relish for villainy is as keen as that of the buzzard for carrion. As a sample of its taste in this respect, we may allude to its treatment of the United States officers at Philadelphia. It abused all of them, without exception, till an act of monstrous wickedness on the part of the Postmaster chanced to come to light and a rumor became prevalent that he would be punished by removal. At once the Press became his champion, defending his transparent venality and making his removal the ground of fresh charges against the administration. Pretending to more than common honesty, and hypocritically prating about public and private morality, FORNEY, since his connection with the Press, has shown himself always ready and eager to break a lance in support of a public defaulter, or to smash a plate in defence of a seducer of virtuous girls. It is as absurd and impudent for such a man to talk about "personalities of the press," as for a satan to rebuke sin, or for a horse thief to preach against stealing.

We may be accused of using rough language in this article, but let us inquire who would think of using anything but the roughest of brushes to scrub a skunk?

Naturalized Citizens. The opposition journals are still striving to bewilder our naturalized citizens as to the position of the administration on the question of protecting them when they visit their native land. Of course the Transcript is one of the loudest accusers of the administration. The editors of that paper seem to feel themselves specially called upon to vindicate the rights of our naturalized citizens. The Germans ought to be thankful to providence for raising up such valiant and sincere champions of their cause. It is true that Mr. MERKLEIN went into the Know Nothing Council in this place a few years ago and took an oath to deprive naturalized citizens of their rights, and it is also true that Mr. RANKIN went into a Know Nothing Council at Greencastle and took the same oath. But we all know that the thief on the cross repented, and remembering that fact, we are prepared to say it is impossible for the editors of the Transcript to have laid aside the bigoted principles to which they swore adherence when they connected themselves with the meanest and most corrupt political organization that ever disgraced the country. They may be very sincere in their present show of devotion to the rights and interests of the very class of citizens they lately tried to degrade to their old Know Nothing platform.

But even if we concede the sincerity of their very late repentance of the sin of Know Nothingism, we cannot say much for their modesty, seeing that they do not hesitate to charge the Democracy with what they themselves have been distinguished for heretofore—namely, disregard of the rights of foreign born citizens.

In their issue of last week, the editors of the Transcript attempted to break the force of Mr. J. W. DOUGLAS' remarks on the naturalization question at the Danvers meeting, by calling his attention to the position of the national administration; and by revamping Gen. Cass' letter to Mr. LAUMAN, to show what that position is. Now it is hardly possible that the editors of the Transcript are so profoundly ignorant of passing affairs of great importance, that they do not know that "the position of the national administration" on the question of protecting our naturalized citizens when sojourning in their native country, is not laid down by Gen. Cass in his letter to Mr. LAUMAN. No member of the Cabinet can lay down the position of the administration on any question, except by direction of the President. Gen. Cass' letter was written on his own responsibility and without consultation with the President. It therefore was not an official exposition of the views of the administration. When a presidential agent goes the President, as he is called upon a question of law is interested, only upon the Attorney General's opinion.

When rendered, Judge BLACK'S opinion was adopted; and upon the solid foundation laid down by the Judge, the Secretary of State, by direction of the President, framed a dispatch to our Minister at Berlin, which does not admit of a doubt of the determination of the national administration to protect our naturalized citizens in all their just rights wherever they may go.

The opinion of Judge BLACK on this question has been widely published and highly commended. The editors of the Transcript have undoubtedly seen it, and they are just as certainly aware that it, and not the LE CREEK letter, embodies the views and defined the position of the administration. In producing the LE CREEK letter for the benefit of the Democratic party in general and Mr. DOUGLAS in particular, and attempting to palm it upon the public as an official exposition of the position of the administration, they have committed a serious offense against moral law. They have knowingly done wrong to gain a party advantage for their party. But they presume too much upon the ignorance of their readers. They forget that other papers than the Transcript are circulated and read. The verdict of the people will wake them to a consciousness of the fact that the views of the administration are understood and approved, and that their pitiful attempt at misrepresentation is scorned as it deserves to be.

Judge Black. A number of Democratic papers in this State have proposed the Hon. J. S. BLACK as our next candidate for Governor. We do not know whether the Judge would accept or refuse a nomination for that position, nor have we been able to make up our mind whether he should accept or refuse. His nomination would withdraw him from the office of Attorney General of the United States a year before the expiration of his term, which would be a loss to the whole country. It would also impose upon him a sacrifice of means and of prospects which he should not, perhaps, be required to make. But then the good old State of Pennsylvania, which has more than once been cursed with unworthy Governors, but never before so awfully cursed as now, would gain immensely by the election of Judge BLACK. Her domestic affairs would assume new shape under the touch of his master hand, and many evils which would be added to her stature in the eyes of her sister States.

So far as the Democracy of Franklin county are concerned, they are always ready to support Judge BLACK for any office for which he may consent to become a candidate. They would much rather support him for President or Vice President than for Governor, but if those are urging him for the gubernatorial chair can get him to consent to take it, they may rest assured of the hearty cooperation of the Democrats of this county. There is not another county in the Commonwealth where Judge BLACK has so many and such devoted friends as he has here in Franklin, and we think it much to the credit of our people that they have so high an appreciation of a public man who deserves to be so highly appreciated. It is not everywhere that the best man has the most friends, though it most assuredly ought to be so.

The Way Forney Went Over. Some people are at a loss to know how FORNEY got over to the opposition. We had warning that he intended to go, and we kept an eye on him to see how he would manage it. We know exactly how it was done. A colored dancing master, in learning his pupils how to "cut the pigeon wing," gave them these directions: "First advance do left foot; don't advance do right foot; don't give one general conclusion. FORNEY adopted the darkey's dancing directions when he made up his mind to desert the Democracy. First he advanced the left foot towards the opposition; and he advanced the right foot; and then "one general conclusion" carried him clear over.

"When says—By" There is a rumor about that the name of W. M. F. JOHNSON is shortly to disappear from the masthead of the Transcript, where it now proudly bears "for President in 1860," and that it is to be replaced by the great and glorious name of SIMON CAMERON! The interesting ceremony ought to be accompanied by the publication of certain CAMERON articles heretofore printed in the Repository and Transcript.

Judge Black. This distinguished gentleman, the able and accomplished Attorney General of the United States is supposed on a visit to the Fugate Springs. He is looked upon by the people of Big Horn County as an old villain, and at all times receives a hearty welcome to his home. Of the whole country of this man who occupies the Chair of Simons Blackman, not one of them panthers were able to catch him, though at the time they were made up of a large number of them.

is improving the genius and ability upon the Administration of Mr. Buchanan, which are destined to transmit it to posterity as one of the brightest that has ever adorned the pages of our country's history.—Genius of Liberty, Uniontown, Pa.

The Fusion Movement. It does not appear that the proposed fusion of the opposition which three New York journals are advancing with so much zeal and pertinacity is regarded with much favor by some of the parties whose success is essential to the success of the fusion. The Albany Evening Journal, for example, has not only publicly repudiated the idea, but black Republicans will abandon one of their "indivisible dogmas." "If we triumph at all, we do so as Republicans; and the republican banner, with a republican standard bearer," is such a means of the triumph at all, we desire to do so as soldiers of the northern division of the irrepressible conflict, as aggressors on slavery, under the banner of constitutional, non-resistance, and higher lawism, and will not be any other flag or standard bearer."

It is important that the laws of the fusion movement be understood. It is not a fusion of parties for a season, to whom the Fusion letters with such graceful compliments, should tender this enthusiastic order of the day from the headquarters of Republicanism. Two Days Later from Europe. Arrival of the Atlas—England Increasing her Navy.—The Atlantic Cable.—The London strike becoming dangerous.—French Interests in Italy.—Letter from India.

Major Hook, August 13th.—The R. M. steamship Atlas, from Liverpool on the 6th inst. has passed here, bound up for New York. Her officers are two days later than the steamer. The Peace Conference, at Berlin, was to meet on the 13th inst.

The following are the details by the steamer Atlas' crew: The steamer Atlas, from New York, arrived at Liverpool on Saturday, August 7. In the British Parliament a bill creating a Naval Reserve of 30,000 men was progressing. The Bank of France, reduced its rate of interest from 4 per cent. to 3 1/2 per cent. The Government of the French Navy was progressing. The 1,000,000 unexpended of the late loan, is to be devoted to internal improvement.

It is reported that an attempt had been made to poison Garibaldi. The French Republic is intriguing to free the Grand Duches. Naples has decided to admit Bread-tiffs free of duty.

It is reported that Baron de Bock, the Austrian Minister of the Interior, had tendered his resignation the acceptance of which was refused by the Emperor.

The 4th of July past of the 13th of July has been telegraphed. French troops were accepting their discharges in large numbers. The mutineers at Barmahampore had returned to duty, except forty of the leaders, who will be court-martialed. Exchange was quoted at 25. 1/2 and 3/4.

Parishes from California. St. Louis, Aug. 17.—The Overland Mail brings San Francisco news to the 24th inst.—Business was more active than there had been some improvements in prices. The town of Gila City was visited by a fire on the 23rd inst., consuming 80 houses. The amount of loss had not been ascertained.

Advices from the Sandwich Islands state that the imports had not been reduced, and would not go into operation until September 1860. A ship was arrived at San Francisco, the King Philip, Storm King, and Belle of the West, from Boston, ship Meteor and Young America from New York.

Baltimore, Aug. 17.—A lad named Donahoe was shot last night, during the riotous proceedings of certain American political clubs. He had a shell wound in the arm and head, but his injuries are not considered very dangerous.

Recognition of Professor Wier. Lafayette, Ind., August 17.—Prof. Wier made an address at 2 o'clock this afternoon, in his summer residence. He is destined for the East. The wind was light.

A Heartily Creditor.—Marshall's Bulletin. The Chicago Journal records the suicide of a baggage master on the Central Railroad, named Smith. He had failed in the drug business, and was somewhat involved in debt. The Journal says: "Soon after he obtained his new situation at a salary of fifty dollars per month, one of his creditors, who held a note against him to the amount of one hundred dollars sought him out and requested a settlement, proposing to accept monthly installments of twenty dollars each, until the whole could be cancelled, thus leaving him forty dollars per month upon which to live. To this Mr. Griffith would not assent, and the arrangement appears to have been effected between them."

After the interview he approved very reluctantly. About 6 o'clock on Wednesday his wife found him upon the bed apparently in a fit. A physician was sent for, but could offer him no relief, and he expired about 3 o'clock. In the evening of the 17th a difficulty was recognized in the quantity of laudanum he had been taking, and a portion of his notes in cash. He should furnish a widow's tears and orphan's cries for the balance.

Mexico Again.—The Charleston Courier professes to have a special dispatch from New Orleans containing advice from Missions to the 24 of August, that the Government of the Republic had been dissolved, and that the property had been dissolved under the name of Mr. Smith, had arrived at New Orleans, having left Mexico to avoid imprisonment in country prison of Mexico. The dispatch states that the Government of the Republic had been dissolved, and that the property had been dissolved under the name of Mr. Smith, had arrived at New Orleans, having left Mexico to avoid imprisonment in country prison of Mexico.

News from Bohemia and Armenia. (Correspondence of the World.) Manchester, July 27, 1860. Battle in Bohemia.—Continuation Defeat—One Hundred Killed—Affairs in Armenia. It has been several days in the midst of the 4th and 5th consequent upon the approach of the British army, composed of 7000 men and 1000 horses, and the French army of 1000 men and 1000 horses. The British army was defeated at the battle of Magdalen in a town of about 2000 inhabitants, situated only a few miles from the frontier. It is a place of considerable trade, as the mixing companies of Armenia send here for their supplies of Beer, Brandy, Honey, and other articles.
