No Frisco - The Douglas State Executive Commission met at Harrisburg on Wednesday last.

Whatever Forney says against the union movement of the Democratic party, is seized upon by the Republican party as positive proof that no such union can be effected.

The Forney-Douglasites continue to catch it on all sides from the lips of Mr. Douglas.

Containing regular nominations, these men have set themselves against regular nominations - have created a regular State electoral ticket, and are openly rebelling against the State organization.

FORNEY AND THE UNION ELECTORAL TICKET IN YORK. - We are much gratified at being able to state to our readers that a movement is on foot to state to our readers the complete organization of the Democratic party in the borough of York.

The Crozier in Europe. - The last European mail furnished us with accounts of the crops in those countries where the harvest is terminated.

PEACHES ON THE DEPARTURE OF THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Aspirations blue, ye gales, And swell the Royal sails That float the Prince of Wales In a vessel of the line, Away to Canada.

What transports the Canadians will excite When they behold our youthful Prince, Not only alone, but also there, Escorting with England's share In Protestant Sophia's heir.

They make no doubt, a greater force Than what is usually made by us, In some of our remoter parts, Where country is so wide and bare, Forth not the Imperial Majesty.

What would the demand? To please the King the good! Hosts of reporters will be steps to go, As Baron Kebleton though he goes not so.

Ye free and easy citizens, be ye still, Be proud not our young Prince to sell, Upon his morning toilet do not humbly Wait till he's dressed.

And, oh! to touch a tender theme, How with the fair around him roam, And try, forgetting all their names, To salute his cheek and hair, The resolution of a happy dream, The force of loveliness is strong, A spark a spark, and under cover, And certain things in Heaven are written, And there are many causes to hinder.

THE DIRTY LITTLE SNOB.

"There's nothing right but what I think, There's nothing good but most and nothing, There's nothing to be more with, believe it, So, the dirt little snob."

"I'd like to know the use of friends, Unless they serve one's pleasant ends; The best is he who gives or lends, So, the dirt little snob."

"However chaste and pure she be, And bright and beautiful to see, No woman can say 'Nay' to me, So, the dirt little snob."

YOUNG MEN.

We see it stated in our exchange papers that, among the late graduates at West Point, is a son of Commodore Vanderbilt, and that he received from his father, on graduating, the sum of $50,000.

We can well believe it. If young men knew the anxiety of their fathers for them, if they believed in its depth and extent, more of them would turn out well. The wealth of a father is but a poor consolation to him if his sons are worthless, and most men would make any sacrifice to secure manly, virtuous and successful boys.

But in the first, deflections from the path that leads straight forward in the right, the father sees the danger. As the flash of the lightning which, at night, illumines the entire horizon, so one trait of recklessness warns him of the dismal future, and so, with pain which is beyond all words, he watches one successive sign of ruin appearing after another. The young man at first supposes himself wiser than his father; but, step by step, he ceases to care. The end of him is an early grave, or a festering living pollution, which makes his death at last a relief to the earth.

THE INNER LIFE.

"To the hour of midnight hour, Very lonely, very drear, All things round me seem to stir, As if to urge me to retire, As if to urge me to retire."

"There is a world of things to do, Never rest till you are free, Not to be idle, not to be, In for ourselves, not for thee."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

MY PRIVATE OPINIONS.

"Marked here no better than here, Salvation is a matter of mere chance, Beware of those who say they're free, Beware of those who say they're free."

"Friendship is a thing of convenience, And it is not worth a man's esteem, Honour is a mere matter of show, Honour is a mere matter of show."

"True greatness is being unobtrusive, And it is not worth a man's esteem, True virtue is being unobtrusive, True virtue is being unobtrusive."

A TALKING STORY.

The following affecting narrative purports to have been given by a father to his son, as warning derived from his own bitter experience of grieving and resisting a mother's love and counsel.

What agony was visible on my mother's face when she saw that all she said and suffered failed to move me! She rose to go home and I followed at a distance. She spoke no more to me till she reached her own door.

"It is school time now," said she. "Go, my son, and once more let me beseech you to think upon what I have said."

MY LIFE IS WRONG.

"What shall I do to reach the light? My life is wrong, I feel it so, I feel it so, I feel it so, I feel it so."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

THE OPPOSITION EXERCISED ABOUT FOSTER.

The Opposition papers are generally exercised with reference to General Foster's position on the Presidency. Some of them assert, with much confidence, that he is for Douglas, while others assert, equally confidently, that he is for BREKIDGEMAN.

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

A TALL FELLOW PERMITTED IN STANDING.

A tall fellow permitted in standing during the performance at one of the theatres, much to the annoyance of the audience, and was repeatedly called upon to sit down, but would not. "Let him alone," said Hood, who was in the pit; he's a tailor, and sewing himself!" He immediately sank down.

"I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead, I have a heart that is not dead."

THE UNJUST VERDICT.

Another of those mysterious wrappings which see a man and then to be sent by providence to save the reason of man to pass, when sitting in judgment on the crimes of his fellow-men, has occurred lately in the court of Cassation...

Two years ago, two men of Finsterer were arrested by a burglar under peculiar circumstances. A charge had been entered during the night, though the couple by whom it was committed, buried, and was brought forward, in order to find out the secret of their conduct...

But on the 22d of January, the same jury returned a verdict to judge the same crime, with the same intention to distribute to the community. Nothing was stated in the accused for the two men...

A clergyman having preached several times in a small town, in which he had not been invited to dinner, said, in sermons, exhorting his hearers against being seduced by the prevalent views of the age...

Conyart, a physician of celebrity, during the early part of this century, was lauded to the skies by the death of Dr. Becker. "It was not, at all events, of an individual he died," said he, "for in the last days of his illness we—Hills, Parol and myself—did not quit him for a single instant. 'Alas!' interrupted the witty Abby, 'what could he do against three of you?'"

The Perry-Douglas Committee that undertook the job of purging the Reading electoral ticket was composed of 67 members. It was that a quorum was present at the meeting. It is fair to presume that the majority who refused to attend were opposed to the object of the meeting.

Doctor Boley, who was very angry when any joke was passed upon his profession, once said, "I defy any person whom I ever tented to accuse me of ignorance or neglect. 'That you may safely do, Doctor,' replied a way; 'dead men tell no tales.'"

With baser neta's the workmanship is every thing; but when it is a question of gold, we do not much care whether we get it in the dust, then, or the sovereign, as, too the greatest political ideas are independent of their vehicle.

A generous mind identifies itself with all around it; a selfish one identifies all things with itself. The generous man seeks happiness in promoting that of others; the selfish man reduces all things to his own interest.

Napoleon III's "Life of Julius Caesar" is now in course of publication. The Emperor of the French shares the theories of the historian Mommsen in regard to the democratic principles of the Roman conqueror.

Col. Forbes, of Kansas territory, has turned up in Sicily, where he enjoys the confidence of Garibaldi and occupies an important military position.

It is said that the Empress Eugenie is about to present the Emperor with a new taken of conjugal love.

Parodi is in Portland, Me., where she is delighting the people with her vocal sation.
