THE WAR!

From Washington.
WASHINGTON, June 25.
There is a sentiment prevailing here among Northern visitors...

According to a remark made by Gen. Beauregard to a lady, who recently went to Manassas Junction to effect the release of a minor the Rebels have no purpose to invade Washington...

The Baltimore Secessionists are much annoyed with Gen. Johnston, the rebel commander in Virginia, for his wholesale destruction of property at Martinsburg...

It is understood to be the policy of the Government to permit the rebellious Legislature of Maryland to pass any disloyal acts it pleases...

The National Intelligencer denies that the Government has received any offer of compromise from Jeff Davis or his agents.

Information from the Rebel camp in Tennessee adds to the belief that great dissatisfaction exists among the minor generals with the commander of the Tennessee forces...

The following singular paragraph is taken from an editorial in the National Republican of this morning...

WASHINGTON, June 25.
The Legislature of Maryland took no other vote to-day, adjourning to the 30th of July to meet again on that day at Frederick.

WASHINGTON, June 25.
The general G. A. Smith's military operations in the Valley of Virginia...

From Fortress Monroe.
Fortress Monroe, June 25.
The gun boat Mattiello made a reconnaissance yesterday up the Rappahannock river.

WASHINGTON, June 25.
The Second Wisconsin Regiment went into camp to-night. The Thirty First New York Regiment arrived this afternoon...

WASHINGTON, June 25.
The Thirty Fifth New York Regiment is hourly expected here. Three regiments from New Jersey will be with the War Department...

It is understood that there was a military conference here to-day. Lieutenant General Scott was among the officers present.

It is believed that Col. Riker's "Anderson Zouaves" of New York, have been accepted.

WESTERN VIRGINIA CONVENTION.
WHEELING, June 25.
The Western Virginia Convention to-day finished its business for the present. Several amendments of only local importance were passed...

ST. LOUIS, June 25.
The Democrat has a special despatch from Louisville, which says that General Lyon addressed the citizens of that place yesterday, and expressed a desire to be furnished with horses and wagons...

Gen. Beckner and Gov. Magoffin.
GRAFTON, June 25.
The letter of General Beckner to Governor Magoffin, dated at Louisville, June 10th, has created much surprise here.

General Jackson's force of 8,000 has marched towards the Potomac. General Johnson's force at Winchester does not exceed 10,000 men, while reinforcements have arrived there since Sunday.

Major Doubleday's battery threw round shot and shell this evening toward the house where the rebel pickets are stationed opposite Williamsport.

The platoon of the rebels seems to be drawn from Patterson's column into Virginia and then retreat, fighting only at the points where a chance for successful resistance to the Federal troops can be made.

Special dispatches from Grafton say that Col. McClanahan's German Regiment moved to Phillips yesterday morning. Sergeant Dunham, of the North Indian Regiment, who is the best scout in the service and an old comrade of Kit Carson, returned yesterday, after being three days in the rebel camp's lines.

The South Carolina troops there have an abundance of arms in the way of guns, but of a miscellaneous character. They have five or six-pound guns in two marked batteries. Governor Wise was expected here arrived they would attack the Federal camp at Phillips.

The steamer Parkersburg, arrived here this morning from the mouth of the Mississippi, Pensacola and Key West. She was captured by the gun-boat Hester and the steamer Rose on the 2nd.

The schooner Forest King, of Fairhaven, had been taken, and a prize crew taken her to New York.

The prize ship Andia, seized by the United States blockading squadron at the mouth of the Mississippi, passed on Friday this morning in charge of United States officers. She is loaded with salt and was bound for New Orleans.

WASHINGTON, June 26.
The paymaster of the army are paying of the Regiments in this vicinity to-day. A messenger to the War Department, who has just arrived states that the Saratoga Pennsylvania Regiment is at Poolesville, Md., and not at Harper's Ferry, as has been published.

A change in the programme of the movements in Eastern Virginia, has without doubt, been determined upon by the Administration. Major General Dix had an interview with Gen. Scott and the Secretary of War this morning, preparatory to assuming the command of the forces across the Potomac.

It is stated that Secretary Chase will positively recommend a revision of the Morrill Land Bill.

opening of the extra session of Congress, will recommend any compromise, having for its object the reconstitution of those now in arms against the Federal Government, no one at all acquainted with the views of the Administration believes.

On the contrary, it will doubtless be found that the course already initiated will be firmly maintained, in conformity with the inaugural address, and on this, as on all other subjects, the Administration is one, undivided and indivisible.

Lord Lyons, accompanied by the Secretary of State, officially visited the President to-day, in order to deliver to him the Royal letter announcing the death of the Queen's mother, the Duchess of Kent.

Harper's Ferry—A View from the Maryland Heights.
I began the ascent of the Maryland Heights about half-past five o'clock this morning. After long and tedious climbing over rocks and among thick laurel bushes, we reached the top of the base of the mountain to its top. It must have occasioned them immense labor.

It led first to the camp occupied by the Kentuckians, under Blanton Duncan, numbered when they retreated only one hundred and sixty men. Here we found twenty-six small cabins, constructed of small chestnut trees, sloping backwards from the top, the front part being about twelve feet high, and the back part seven or eight. This slope was given to them in order to have their roof cabin fashion.

They were the roughest structures I ever saw, and these are built with an eye to protection against all kinds of weather, but would not have prevented the entrance of rain from all sides. Around them lay several thousand feet of barrels, evidently intended for roofing purposes. In some of them rude, unbrw pale berths were put up, so that two or three could enjoy the luxury of open quarters and open sky.

What must have been the reflections of these "sons of Southern gentlemen," as their friends called them, as they lay on the top of the bleak mountain upon such beds, and looked out upon the starlight during a cold, shivering night, or felt the pines driving a heavy rain upon them? Did they think of the homes they had left, with all their comforts and luxuries, to fight against the flag their fathers bore gallantly upon many fields?

Beyond and above this was a partially constructed quadrangle of chestnut logs, the east side—the building being located upon the very crest of the mountain—the ground suddenly sank away. In this depression they had commenced to build a stone wall in the usual manner in rural districts. Upon these one battery either had rested or was to rest. The sides of the quadrangle had not reached anywhere more than three feet. It had been abandoned before their retreat.

The strangest part of this whole encampment was that they had no parade ground, there being but a sixty feet between the double rows of cabins, and that not being cleared more than four hundred feet in length. They could not have formed more than three hundred men into line, and not fifty. The surface was rough and uneven and full of swamps, so that a straight line in ranks could not be presented. The drill very amusing affair. Dogberry's master of the night watch could not have been more so.

Immediately south of this, and in a straight line towards the Ferry, there is a depression in the ridge, and by a neck the Heights are connected with what is called by the mountaineers the Pinnacle. This presents one of its sides to the Potomac, where there is a most fearful precipice—a perpendicular of full three hundred feet, heaving, frowning, darker, grayer than any I could keep. Along this neck the Kentuckians constructed also an old fashioned stockade, such as their fathers were wont to repel Indian attacks with almost a certainty. These are known upon the Western frontier now-a-days by the name of blockades. It had thirteen sentinels upon the north side, was near one hundred feet long. It consisted of heavy chestnut posts square with an apex upon their edges, with a distance between the posts of ten feet, being about the height of the posts. Between every second of the posts were placed a pair of logs, which were placed in a similar manner to the posts. The distance between the logs was longer, and the logs were crossed at their ends by a pair of logs, which were placed in a similar manner to the posts.

Thus situated in a most favorable position, they were able to command the whole of the heights, and to see the boats of the Federal fleet as they came up the river.

their high position upon the mountain, and upon the upper side of the ridge, jumping and sprawling among their companions below.

Thus ended my reconnaissance of Harper's Ferry in ruins.—Correspondence of N. Y. Herald.

From Harper's Ferry.
On Wednesday afternoon a force of about 400 Confederate troops returned to Harper's Ferry, and recommenced the work of destruction. On their appearance on the outskirts of the town there was a general stampede of the citizens that remained there or returned to town after their late evacuation by Johnson's army.

They mostly rushed into the river and made for the Maryland shore by wading and swimming. The Rebel troops followed to the water's edge after them, and fired at them so long as any of them were in range of their pieces. Not one of them (about fifty in number) was either killed or wounded. The Division troops then set fire to the five bridges over the Shenandoah, and completely destroyed it. They also threw into the river a large and very large locomotive belonging to the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, and fired two of the rifle shops. They then captured E. H. Chambers, John Chastain, Alexander H. Brown, and John H. Brown, all highly respected citizens and strong Unionists, and sent them off.

Virginia Members of the Rebel Congress.
FREDERICK, June 25.
The Virginia Secession Convention still in session at Richmond, have elected a number of members to the Confederate Congress. The following gentlemen are among those chosen:—Ex-President Tyler, Walter Preston, Robert A. Scott, Wm. Ballard Preston, Ex-Senator Mason and Bager A. Pryor.

Guerrilla War in Virginia.
WHEELING, June 25.
Parties who have come in to-night from the interior counties, represent them to be in a state of guerrilla war. Great anxiety is felt here. Several means should be taken to rid the State of the guerrillas who now disturb its peace.

Adjournment of the Maryland Legislature.
BALTIMORE, June 25.
The Legislature of Maryland took no other vote to-day, adjourning to the 30th of July to meet again on that day at Frederick.

 A testimonial for Dr. Meyer's Pectoral Cough Syrup, stating that it has cured a long-standing cough and improved the patient's overall health.

THE MARKETS.
Corrected Weekly.
 Flour—The demand for flour is very light. The receipts are moderate, but prices generally are rather weak. There is very little export demand, and prices are unsettled: 600 barrel common extra at the same rate. The trade are buying up from the above figure up to $2.25 for very prime Pennsylvania and $2.25 for the latter, and $2.30 for fancy brands, according to quality. Bye Flour and Corn Meal are but little inquired for. We quote the former at $2.25, and Pennsylvania Meal at $2.25 without sack. For Ohio extra quality we quote at $2.35.
 Grain—There is not much wheat offering to-day, but the demand for it is limited and the market rather dull. About 5000 bushels have been disposed of at $1.15 to $1.16 for fair to prime Pennsylvania and $1.25 for the latter, and $1.30 for 44 for white, including 5000 bushels good Pennsylvania at $1.32, about 1400 bush, Spring at $1.10 in store. Prime Pennsylvania is in demand at $1.15, but generally held higher. Corn continues scarce and further sales of 2000 bush have been reported at $0.55 to $1.00, and 1000 bush, Western, mixed at $0.55, mostly at the latter rate. Oats are dull; 2000 bush, Southern sold last evening at $0.50. Pennsylvania sold at $0.50.
